The East African Research Information Centre (EARIC), sponsored by the East African Academy and financed by the Ford Foundation, is a new institution intended to promote efficient information exchange within the field of the social sciences and development. Its immediate objectives are to collect, collate and disseminate information on past and current research in the social sciences with special reference to East Africa. The present list is a considerably enlarged version of the Bibliography No. 4 of the "Africa-Studien 5" (Ifo-Institute for Economic Research, Munich, 1965). The data have been collected since 1964 continuously, by scanning current and non-current bibliographies. An attempt has been made to present a list of bibliographies and reference works so complete that the user would be enabled to find any primary source for the study of East African cultures and development at least within the period 1946-1966, and to some extent 1967-1968. Although this is intended to be a comprehensive list of sources for Kenya, Uganda, and Tanzania, a selection of bibliographies on neighboring countries is also listed because these contain social anthropological sources on ethnic groups living in the three major countries. It is estimated that the 796 titles listed cover 80 to 85 percent of all bibliographies relevant to this area. An address list is appended to help the user obtain items in this bibliography. (JD)

EARIC INFORMATION CIRCULAR No.1

September, 1968

Preface

The East African Academy was founded in 1962, after a few East Africans studying in London had met to discuss the future of science in our three countries on the eve of political independence. A start was made, the first nucleus formed, and Dr. N.S. Otieno was elected the first President. In October 1963, I had the honour of becoming the second President of the Academy.

Since the very beginning, our policy has consistently remained the same. The East African Academy is as young as our countries are. In this sense, it is not comparable to the centuries old Academies of Sciences of other parts of the world. The aims we pursue, however, are much the same as theirs. We want to provide a forum for and assist the most outstanding scholars of our part of the world and to promote learning and research in general.

I am happy to present to the reader this first circular of the East African Research Information Centre which is sponsored by the East African Academy. I trust that the data contained in it will prove useful to social scientists and to all those seriously interested in East African studies. I also believe that this kind of information is apt to prevent a great deal of unnecessary duplication of research effort which is usually the result of ignorance of either what has already been done or of what already exists in the world literature. Finally, it is my hope that this list of sources will assist in locating the actual gaps that exist in some areas of social scientific studies in East Africa with a view to encouraging research in those areas.

A. Notes for the User

1. The EARIC and Its First Information Circular

The EARIC, sponsored by the East African Academy and financed by the Ford Foundation, is a new institution intended to promote efficient information exchange within the field of the social sciences and development. Its immediate objectives are "to collect, collate and disseminate information on past and current research in the social sciences with special reference to East Africa. Information will be made available to accredited scholars from any country and to interested government ministries and other accredited bodies in the East African Community. To further its aims and objectives, EARIC will undertake to work closely with and co-operate with institutions in and outside East Africa having similar interests." (Quoted from the "Memorandum of Understanding" between the East African Academy and the Ford Foundation).

On 1st April 1968 we opened the EARIC-office in Olympic House, 3rd floor, Koinange Street (mailing address: P.O.Box 30756, Nairobi). The first months were spent in completing the physical set-up, starting correspondence with institutes engaged in East African studies, ordering books and periodicals and speeding up the completion of the bibliographical files. By now over 9,000 titles have been collected, covering the field of the social sciences and works relevant to the economic and social development of Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. The alphabetic filing of these titles is almost completed. However, the double classification of the same titles (according to topics and geographical areas) has yet to be done. Out of the whole material only a few sets have been selected so far. In this first EARIC information circular we present one of these sets: A list of bibliographies, reference works and other sources for East African studies.

If the user were to be surprised at the large number of such sources, this information circular would have fulfilled its function. In fact, an increasing and more wide-spread awareness of the amount of work which has been done is very much needed at the present stage of East African studies. By sending our circulars free of charge to a relatively large number of potentially interested addresses (present circulation: 700) we hope to fill some gaps in the existing channels of information on completed social scientific research and development in East Africa.

2. Sources Used

The present list is a considerably enlarged version of the Bibliography no.4 of the "Afrika-Studien 5" of the Ifo-Institute for Economic Research, Munich (Molnos, 1965). The data have been collected since 1964 continuously, by scanning current and non-current bibliographies. The main sources of information have been the invaluable current bibliography compiled by Miss Ruth Jones in "Africa" (Journal of the International African Institute, London), vols. 16(1946) to 37(1967) and vol. 38(1968) nos. 1 and 2; "A Bibliography of African Bibliographies" (Cape Town, South African Library, 1961); numerous catalogues of publications (CEDESA, CIDESA, Scandinavian Institute of African Studies, Eastern African Studies Program of Syracuse University, UNESCO, etc.) as well as some of the bibliographies and reference works themselves.

3. Types of Works Listed

Most of the titles listed are bibliographies and bibliographical articles (printed, mimeographed, etc.). Among them there are some special types of bibliographies: lists of official publications by Governments; lists of doctoral dissertations, theses accepted by a university or by universities of a country; bibliographies of works on Africa published in one country or in one language area only; lists of publications by one institution or publisher (catalogues of publications); bibliographies listing the works of one author only; and so on.

Accession-lists and catalogues of some libraries having large sections on East Africa have also been included. Catalogues of some museums and art collections are listed because of their possible relevance for the study of East African cultures. Furthermore, there are lists and catalogues of maps, atlases, records of African music, ethnographic films, etc.

The names of a few abstracts and other periodical publications are included because of their importance for current bibliographical and other information on East African studies. A later EARIC information circular will bring a full list of periodicals relevant to the study of East African cultures and development.

Various kinds of non-bibliographical reference works (e.g. lists of institutions, reports of research institutes) are listed as being useful sources for further information. Another EARIC information circular will contain a comprehensive bibliography on social scientific research in East Africa, its organization, theoretical, methodological and practical problems.

Finally, there is a special set of writings on archival and bibliographical work, libraries, book production, etc. in Africa. These titles have been included because they might be of interest to bibliographers, librarians and archivists, especially in East Africa, who, presumably, will form an important group of users of the present information circular.

4. Topics Covered

An attempt has been made to present a list of bibliographies and reference works so complete that the user would be enabled to find any primary source for the study of East African cultures and development at least within the period 1946-1966 (and to some extent 1967-1968). The main topics to which the present list gives access are: administration, agricultural development, archaeology, art, demography, development (planning), economics, education, geography, government, health, history, industrialization, legal problems, linguistics, literature, nutrition, politics, psychology, social anthropology, sociology, urbanization, etc.

Some bibliographies (e.g. the current Uganda bibliography by B.W. Langlands) cover the social as well as the natural sciences. Others deal exclusively with the natural sciences, but have been included because of their relevance to the social sciences or to social and economic development.

5. Period Covered

With a very few exceptions from an earlier period, only works published between 1946-1966 (and to some extent 1967-1968) are listed. Continuing and periodical publications are listed under the first year of their appearance. This is in many cases prior to 1946. Non-periodical publications prior to 1946 will be listed in a later EARIC information circular. As far as possible, an effort was made to include also works published in 1967-1968 (June), i.e. up to date. However, this latter period is only incompletely covered. A supplement will be issued later on to fill this gap. Also the works for which the exact year of publication (or first year of publication) could not be ascertained (e.g.: ...., 19...,196., 1965?) can reasonably be assumed to fall into the period 1946-1966 (1967-1968).

6. Geographical Area Covered

An attempt has been made to include all bibliographies directly relevant to Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda or referring to any area within these countries. Also a selection of bibliographies on neighbouring countries (Congo, Burundi, Ethiopia, Malawi, Mozambique, Rwanda, Somali, Sudan, Zambia) is listed because these contain social anthropological sources on ethnic groups living partly in Kenya, Tanzania or Uganda.

The majority of the bibliographies listed refer, however, to a wider area than the three East African countries and their neighbours. These publications have been included whenever it was known, or assumed, that they contain information relevant to East Africa. The large proportion of such bibliographies covering Africa as a whole or not having any geographical limitation (e.g. bibliographies covering "Africa South of the Sahara", "Afrique Noire", "international" bibliographies) should not mislead the user. Many important sources relevant to parts of Africa other than East Africa have been deliberately left out. The user should be aware of the fact that this is a comprehensive list of sources for Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda only.

7. Completeness

At this point the question of how complete the present list is necessarily arises. It is always difficult to establish what one has missed involuntarily after having tried to achieve completeness. On the basis of former experiences in bibliographical work, however, it can be estimated that the 796 titles listed cover not less than 80% - 85% of all bibliographies relevant to Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda, within the field of the social sciences and development, which have been published from 1946 to 1966.

8. Some Technical Details

a. Works are listed alphabetically according to authors, compilers, editors or sponsoring institutions;
Anonymous articles are referred to under the title of the periodical in which they appear;
Periodicals as continuing sources are listed under the name of the publishing institution;
Non-international institutions are listed under the name of the country where they are located.

b. Dates: 1963- means that starting in 1963 successive issues were published; 1963^3 means the third edition appearing in 1963.

c. Non-English titles were translated (fully or partly) only when no internationally-known keyword indicated the contents.

d. Underlining has been used only to characterize the contents of each publication or to indicate those sections which deal with East Africa.

Cross indexing has been omitted in this list. It is hoped that the system of underlining will be a good substitute for it. Cross indexing as well as annotations would have caused a considerable delay in the publication of this circular, outweighing their advantages. Where bibliographies are concerned, quantity can be a fair criterion of quality. The amount of bibliographical work published by a single compiler or institution is, for example, generally a good indicator of their grade of specialization and, therefore, of the quality of their performance. The completeness of a single publication can be roughly estimated by comparing its volume (number of pages or number of titles contained) with the scope indicated by the title. A bibliography on Africa of a few pages with no specification of period, topic and area would obviously be an extreme case of incompleteness and random selection.

9. How to Obtain the Works Listed

Many bibliographical and reference works, publishers' catalogues, etc. can be obtained free of charge, or on an exchange basis, by writing to the respective institutions. The address list on pages 47-54, should help the user in this as well as in obtaining further bibliographical information. A later EARIC information circular will bring a comprehensive mailing list of institutions and organizations engaged in bibliographical work and social scientific research relevant to East Africa. Addresses of periodicals and publishers can be found in special guides which larger bookshops and libraries possess.

At the EARIC itself we are building up a small, specialized reference library of bibliographies, directories, reference books, abstracts, periodicals, institutes' reports, etc. Librarians, archivists, accredited research workers, scholars, and students are most welcome to consult it. However, it must be pointed out that we have as yet only a very small proportion of the works listed in the present information circular and the bulk of acquisitions will not be completed before early 1969.

7. The EARIC Information Circulars are essentially bibliographies containing some other information too. They comprehensively cover Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda (including works referring to wider areas, if relevant to East Africa) within the period 1946-1967 (coverage: about 85% of all published articles and books) and, so far as the data will be available, also 1968 up to date. The list below is just a selection of possible topics provided for illustration. Our order of priorities in preparing the Circulars is based on the evaluation of the answers to this question No. 7.

Please, number the topics listed below in the order of priority corresponding to your personal interest and need for bibliographical information (1 is the highest priority, 46 the lowest). Leave out those topics in which you are not interested and write further topics of your interest on the empty lines giving them priority numbers. Please, use each priority number only once. General remarks such as "I am interested in all" or crosses do not help us. We shall send you the Circulars dealing with topics which you marked with a priority number and take for granted that you are not interested in those topics which you have not marked.
